Said of Scouting by Lord Baden-Powell

The following is an extract from "Aids to Scoutmastership" by Lord Baden-Powell, Chief Scout of the world:

"A Nation owes its success, not so much to its strength in armaments as to the amount of character in its citizens. 'For a man to be successful in life, character is more essential than erudition.' So character is of first value whether for a nation or for the individual."

Counting Wheat Crop Costs

Every Canadian citizen; every one with even a grub-stake in this country, has a direct, definite interest in the Queer antics we have been playing in wheat in the past year or two.

For of the $20 billions of capital invested in this country it is certain that at least $2 or $3 billion has been invested because of Canadian wheat. There is a billion dollars tied up in mortgages and other farm indebtedness in the three prairie provinces alone—the bulk of which has been thrown in the pot on the strength of Canada's ability to grow and sell wheat. Looked at another way, this one commodity has netted Canadian farmers no less than 6.5 billions of dollars in the past 20 years. The figure is based on actual farm prices and takes no account of the billions of dollars brought to railways, mills, implement and supply companies and all those whose livelihood has been made possible and profitable in this country by reason of one thing—wheat. Subtract that much revenue from this country each year and you literally have to start all over again as far as (Continued on page 4)

Buffalo Hill News

The Valentine Dance held at the Buffalo School on Friday, February 15th, proved a big success. It appeared to be a long-felt want in this vicinity, and judging by the numerous enquiries of "When is the next one?" it seemed as though a dance was the right medicine for what ailed them. This goes to show that the little old country schoolhouse can still hold its own when it comes to providing good entertainment at a popular price. Watch for the announcement of our next dance.

We regret to hear that Mr. John Fitzpatrick, of Sunset Valley district, who recently returned home from the Vulcan Hospital, where he had been confined with a broken leg, had to return to the Hospital; having developed pleurisy. We hope he will make an early recovery.

Mrs. Earl returned from Calgary last week, where she had been taking treatment for her eyes, which have been causing her trouble lately. We hope that she gets permanent relief.

Mrs. Robert Love, who had been in poor health for some time, passed away in the Vulcan Hospital on Monday afternoon, Feb. 18th, leaving six children to mourn the loss. We extend our deepest sympathy to them in their sad bereavement.

Mrs. Frank McInenly has been visiting with Mrs. Garrity, of Mossleigh for a few days.

Joint Meeting of U.F.A. and U.F.W.A.

A fairly well attended joint meeting of the U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pinkerton on Wed., Feb. 13.

A motion was passed asking the member for the Little Bow to use his influence in regards to the action of the University of Alberta in not allowing any members of the staff to take part in the election without first resigning.

The Marketing Act was discussed quite freely as well as Social Credit and Junior work. The next joint meeting will be held in Cranton Hall on Thursday Feb. 21.

Annual Meeting of Ratepayers of Marquis

The annual meeting of the rate-payers of the Municipal District of Marquis No. 157, was held in the Oddfellows' Hall at Milo on Saturday, Feb. 16, with a good representation of both men and women present. Mr. W. Oldfield was elected Chairman of the meeting and was ably assisted by Mr. D. R. M. Shouldice who was elected secretary. The ratepayers decided in favor of checking over the auditor financial statement and the chairman declared the meeting open for discussion of various parts of the report. There was a short discussion on the section (relating with assets) (Trusts), dealing with uncollected Trust taxes, Seed Grain and Feed owing by farmers, and Government Guarantee. This latter item received much discussion by the entire meeting. A ratepayer asked why some cases of chicken pox had not been investigated by the Medical Health officer. Dr. E. J. Liesemer was present and stated that he made an inspection of one case as soon as he had been informed and had taken the proper steps to deal with the same. In regard to the second case, he said he had not been informed until two weeks after the affected ones had been mixing unrestrictedly with others. The Doctor pointed out that until he had been informed by those affected, or by others, he had no means of knowing of these outbreaks.

There was an enquiry regarding certain people getting relief, as well as the amount received, while they still had a quantity of grain. The Reeve stated that he could not give the figures off-hand but any ratepayer interested could obtain these figures by calling at the Municipal office. One ratepayer declared his intention of exercising the privilege. Mr. Ward also pointed out that in the case referred to it was not relief but the Mothers Allowance.

As on former occasions the ladies served a lunch in the basement at a moderate charge. The question came up of voting for councillors in divisions instead of voting at large in the municipality and may again come before the ratepayers for their decision.

The nominations for councillors were: Steve Williams, R. Hill, D. Sinclair, and W. Broderick. Three from the above four are to be elected by vote on Saturday Feb. 23rd.

SYNOPSIS

"You're fallen here to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur mine has been systematically jostling the ranch and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector, till now is erupting to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, owners of the Broken Spur ranch, who had grubstaked him on his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore. He sees Broken Spur men rustling Hour-Glass cattle and protests against it.

Dustin, unexpectedly comes along and seeing them, stops and talks to Edith. He mentions the Soda Springs dispute could be settled by marrying him, and Edith refuses his proposal with remarks that make Dustin fume. He insults Stone, who promptly throws him into a pool of water.

Stone tells Crewe, his former assistant, that he is going to meet with Dustin, and he is warned that Dustin could kill him if he got the chance. Stone and Crewe go to the mine, and Stone attempts to make it to the mine, but is caught by the mine and the mine of the rich ore he took from it.

It is learned that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Duro Stone has seen the Broken Spur men rustling Hour-Glass cattle and protests against it. Dustin picks it up and carries it to the mine, and Stone attempts to make it to the mine, but is caught by the mine and the mine of the rich ore he took from it.

They go back to camp, and Dustin shoots Kane. He then the shooting on Proby Goddard, a drug addict, who, stupefied by the narcotic he has taken, did not know whether he was guilty or not. They bury Kane, and then return to the Broken Spur ranch.

Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Crewe and Stone speculate as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dad Kane that Stone had found. Stone thinks of a possible solution, and, accompanied by Edith Carr, rides out to Red Water to see his theory.

(Now Go On With The Story)

"It's his glory hole," he said. "He made a cut in the hill. I suppose he picked up a vein of ore along the hillside and followed it till it went into the hill. Then he dug after it and he got this."

He turned the specimen of ore over and over in his hands and he eyes took on a curious look.

"My Lord," he said softly. "Than again. . . My Lord! It isn't possible."

There was that in his voice that carried conviction to her, too, and she asked his arm in a friendly clutch.

"What is it?" she asked. "Oh, what is it?"

"I'm not quite sure," he said, "but I think it's the real thing. Edith. Any assayer can tell us. It looks to me as if our friend Kane has found a damned good vein of gold on the Hour-glass land. At least we'd better pray it's on the Hour-glass. . . I've seen a lot of ore in Arizona and California, and I'm sure I'm right."

"Oh. . . Words failed her for a minute. . . Then it will put Hour-glass on its feet."

"Yes. If we're right but Edith. . . I'll be much wiser to say not a word about it till we find out. I can get these samples off and have them assayed. When we have the assayer's report it will be time to tell your father. You know the effect a disappointment might have on him."

Her eyes flashed as she glanced at him. So he, too, knew old Joe Carr's weakness! Yet. . . How decently he covered his knowledge! She was suddenly glad that she could trust him.

"I'll do exactly as you advise," she said quietly, "but it'll be a long time to keep it secret. We'll not let any of what we've found."

"Not till we have got the assayer's report and, most important of all, till we have found old man Kane. You see it's sure that Kane and Dustin are partners. I'm not well versed in mining law but I'm under the impression that any man who finds a vein can follow it even under land that belongs to some one else. If Kane and Dustin both know of this find, it means trouble. . . Unless we can get them in ahead of them. Let's get back at once."

They got their ponies and headed back for the Hour-glass.

CHAPTER XI.

A sudden word from Stone made Edith check her horse. It was being low on the near side of his horse and was studying the soil shaly soil. At her unspoken question he pointed to the ground.

"Packed burros and ponies have been along here very long ago," he said. "How do I know?"

"No use in little. No use in little," he said. "I know. Can't you see where that nigger-head carcass been lying? Nothing, can you, but a burro. See that red soil over there? Just genuine! . . . Wait! Let's follow the tracks. You don't seem to have the trail very clear."

"Here's old Kane's farm," he said. "It hasn't been out very long. How do I know? Because it had been out very long the wind would have drifted sand over the ashes. There are none. . . No sands I mean. What's that?"

He stood at gaze staring at a great buzzard that was crow-hopping near the fire. He threw a rock at it and the ungainly bird hopped off against the scrub. He dropped his rifle and hurried across the field and saw the reason for the bird's action: In the rear of a piece of baggage that lay before him. It had been dragged from the fire by the buzzard seeking food. Stone picked it up and carried it to the mine.

There's a sample of the same kind of rock you found in the mine," said Edith quickly. She pointed to a lump of rock lying by the fire. Stone picked it up and examined it curiously. It was stained along one side with a curious brown stain. He paid no attention to that stain but dropped the rock in his pocket when his eyes were caught by certain other things on the ground. While Edith was looking about her for other things, Stone carefully swept up certain odds and ends that lay half-hidden by the fire. There suggestive hints were there and a green-and-red paper torn from a package of foreign mail. Stone considered them, swept them into a heap and thrust them into his pocket.

"We may as well get on," he said, swinging into saddle. "There's no

Little Helps For This Week

We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. 1 John 3:14

Mutual love the token be. Lord that we belong to thee; Love, Thine image, love impart; Stamp it on our face and heart; Only love to us given; Lord, we ask no further boon.

—C. Wesley.

Oh, how many times we most of us can remember when we would gladly have made any compromise with our conscience, would gladly have made the most costly sacrifices to God, if He would only have excused us from the duty of loving which our nature seemed utterly incapable. It is far easier to feel kindly, to act kindly, towards those with whom we are seldom brought into contact, whose tempers and prejudices do not rub against ours, whose interests do not clash with ours, than to keep up an habitual steady self-sacrificing love towards those whose weaknesses and faults are always forcing themselves upon us, and are stirring up our own. A. Maurie.

There are now over 100 agricultural colleges in the Soviet Union.

The average man's hair grows seven inches annually.

Why at 40 You Think You're "GROWING OLD"

It's frequently just an "idea." Not "Old Age," And According to Scientists, May Be Something More Alarming Than A Touch Of Grey Hair.

At least, that's what you think they're growing old. They're not! They're just getting old. Well, scientists say the cause, in most cases, is a lack of proper condition of the stomach. The thing to do is to get the stomach in good condition.

When you have one of these acid stomach troubles, all you do is take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after each meal. You'll feel like a new man. Try this. But if the familiar Phillips' Milk of Magnesia doesn't do the trick, you can't get any more of it.

Also in Tablet Form.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are new on sale at all drug stores everywhere. And this fact is a tremendous relief to you. It's a tremendous relief to you.

That was glorious. I wish you'd ride with me every day. Who's the best? That is some coming from the Hour-glass."

They played on the slope to watch a horse swing out of the home corral at the Hour-glass and head toward them along the narrow trail at a bounding run. From time to time he flung his head angrily and half-leaped into the air at times.

"That's Dustin's big black," said Edith sharply. "I wonder what he's been at the Hour-glass?"

"No good, I bet. He's rowling his horse unmercifully. That's what makes him jump like that."

Beyond a doubt it was San Dustin. Edith gave a quick glance at the swiftly-moving horse that was heading straight for them. They tried to get the house run between two lines of barbed wire, five strands of it set on heavy posts with a tangle of mesquite scrub along the wire. There was ample room in that lane for two horses to pass. . . But would the black pass?

Edith knew instinctively what would happen. She saw the full determination in Dustin's pose. She knew that in every rodeo and riding contest in three counties San Dustin had been victor no other men could be found with difficulty to ride against him. There was not a man in the Valley who could compare with him.

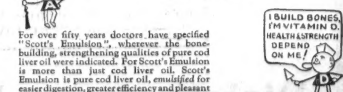

The on-coming horse stretched out faster and faster and a running horse cannot be turned. He must run straight the east on a sure look over her shoulder at the fence. There was no hope for Stone there. No range-bred horse would face such a leap. He looked again at the black horse. She could see Dustin's face now and that face was without his mask of indifference. She remembered the quarrel of the two men. Soda Springs. Dustin's eyes were alight with a light that she knew instinctively though she had never seen it before and she knew what it portended. San Dustin, the best rider in three counties, meant to ride down his enemy in the gobs of caballo, the collision of horses! That gobs of caballo was a recognized form of dueling in days before the pistol was a part of every man's equipment and many a man has been left on the plains with a broken neck or back as a result of it.

"The gobs de caballo," she called faintly. "Look out, Duro. He means to ride you down. . ."

Range-bred though she was, Edith's Carr's eyes were not quick enough to see what happened. Her gaze was centered on the furious on-coming Dustin so she missed the deft touch on the bits with which Stone gathered his great horse. That light touch brought the head down and chin down and in till it seemed to touch the broad chest. A quick unseen pressure of the rider's legs brought the horse up to the bit and for one moment the great Isabella horse half-crouched, like a coiled steel spring utterly subservient to his rider's will. His weight was gathered; his balance poised on those powerful hind-quarters. Dustin was within fifty yards. . . Forty. . . Thirty. . . I was Duro Stone a complete fool? Did he think that for one moment his horse could stand the shock or did he simply not understand? No amateur could face San Dustin on his famous black that had been trained to this sort of contest. Thirty. . . Twenty yards and still no action!

Said of Scouting by Baden-Powell

writing and arithmetic — is taught in the schools; but where is the more important quality, character, taught? Nowhere in particular. There is no authorized training for children in character. Yet, if it is going to make a man's career for him, it ought to be developed in him before he starts out; while he is still a boy and receptive. Character cannot be drilled into a boy. The germ of it is already in him, and needs to be drawn out and expanded. How?

Character is very generally the result of environment or surroundings. For example, take two small boys, (twins, if you like). Teach them the same lessons in school, but give them entirely different surroundings, companions and homes outside the school. Put one under a kindly, encouraging mother, among clean and sturdy play-fellows, where he is trusted on his honour to carry out rules of life and so on. On the other hand, take the second boy and let him loaf in the slums, with a filthy home, among foul-mouthed, thieving, discontented companions. Is he likely to grow up with the same amount of character as his twin?

There are thousands of boys being wasted daily to our country through being left to become — characters, and therefore, useless wasters, a misery to themselves and an eyesore and a danger to the nation.

They could be saved if only the right surroundings or environment were given to them at the receptive time of their lives. And there are many thousands of others who may not be placed on quite so low a level (for there are wasters in every class of life), but who would be all the better and more valuable to the country and more satisfactory to themselves if they could be persuaded, at the right age to develop their character.

Here, then, lies the most important aim in the Boy Scout training — to educate; not to instruct, mind you, but to educate, that is, to draw out the boy to learn for himself of his own desire, the things that tend to build up character in him.

Counting Wheat Crop Costs

Canada being a great world figure in trade and commerce is concerned.

What are these queer antics in wheat?

Put very simply, this country has been trying various ways and means in the past few years of getting more for its wheat than the price which our chief customers were willing to pay or our chief competitors were willing to sell at.

It sounds like a reasonable, business-like game to play but the bald fact (which many westerners will not yet admit) is that the Canadian wheat pools went broke trying to put it into practice. Thus a man named John McFarland was asked to liquidate their badly defunct business and to eliminate if he could the heritage of ill-will this organization created among those who had previously bought our wheat.

Now, just four years later, we seem to be in much the same box again, for under the guise of "stabilization" this same John McFarland (backed by an almost unlimited guarantee) has bought up 93% of all the wheat there is in this country and is currently holding the price 35% above the world level.

His hope is, that an acute shortage will develop in this commodity in the next six months and that shortly the world will come eagerly seeking his golden store. Put more bluntly he seems to be gambling that he is right and the rest of the world wrong when he believes the grim spectre of drought which has swept this continent for the past two years will aid him win his $200,000,000 bet.

In the meantime there are some very unpleasant facts that Canada must face. Some of the most important are:

1. Price of Canadian wheat at Liverpool (our principal market) has been substantially out of line with prevailing prices in that market for over a year.

2. Canada's supply of wheat in store is currently at the highest figure in our entire history (257,000,000 bushels).

3. Our wheat and flour export clearances in December were the smallest in ten years — probably since before the war.

4. To get our wheat "carry-over" down to normal proportions we must export wheat and flour for the remainder of the crop year at the rate of 7,400,000 bushels weekly. In the 23 weeks of the crop year to date, our total exports have been but 4,500,000 bu. weekly.

5. Canada's ocean shipment of wheat and flour in the same period have averaged but 3,100,000 bu. weekly and in recent weeks, only 1,500,000 bu. In the last week in December they dropped to the record low of 600,000 bu.

The Roots of the Wheat Plant

The roots of the wheat plant usually penetrate into the soil for a depth of 5 to 6 feet with a great mass of root material. This root system, completely exhausts all the moisture that the soil will give up to a depth of 5 or 6 feet by harvest time. The roots transfer to the wheat all the moisture and plant food that is available. It takes between 30 and 40 tons of water to make each bushel of wheat, or from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds of water for each pound of wheat. The yield is usually in proportion to the amount of moisture that falls and can be conserved in the soil. The University of Saskatchewan has dug up a wheat plant with all its roots. The Seale Grain Company has made a nice photograph of this plant and roots. One will be sent free to any person asking for it. Address: Research Department, Seale Grain Company, Winnipeg.

Center-Poise Riding in a

Passengers Located Close to Center of Car

Three major engineering principles combine to give to the new Ford V-8 for 1935 what Ford engineers term the "centre-poise" ride, according to Larsen Implements, local Ford dealers.

These principles are: Correct spring suspension, involving equality of front and rear spring flexibility. Proper car weight balance and passenger weight distribution. Location of passengers close to centre of the car.

Utilization of these in combination as practiced by Ford engineers, achieves for the new Ford V-8 remarkable improvement in riding comfort without sacrifice of either safety or stability.
